CPPC is done with 2020, cautiously hopeful about the new year

We'll never forget 2020. It started optimistically, but it was pretty much off the tracks by the end of February.

We thought things might be okay by spring, but no such luck, and by the end of summer we were not only worried about COVID, we were worried about forest fires and were watching the numbers for the Air Quality Index.

We're still not sure how to plan for 2021. As of press time, capacity of Intensive Care Units in our district is at 88%, meaning we should time our medical emergencies carefully, and the CPPC board is trying to figure out what we can plan on, and what will need to wait until our quasi-quarantine rules are eased.

BOARD POSITIONS OPEN

Phil Lapin's resignation from the club presidency, effective this month, moves Jim Wheat into the presidency and leaves us needing a vice-president and one or two secretaries. We need somebody to keep the club records up to date, and take minutes at membership and board meetings.

BOARD MEETING TIME CHANGE

To make board positions accessible to folks who have jobs, we're moving the meetings to Second Tuesday evenings, 7-9PM. The board meets via Zoom, so it's easy to attend.

SWAP MEET PLANNING

Portland Swap Meet is traditionally held the first weekend of April. It doesn't appear that COVID restrictions will be eased by then. With all of our inventory in the club's trailer, it seems possible we could fill a duty roster and set up a booth at the last minute if there is a Portland Swap Meet this year, but we wonder if it would be worthwhile.

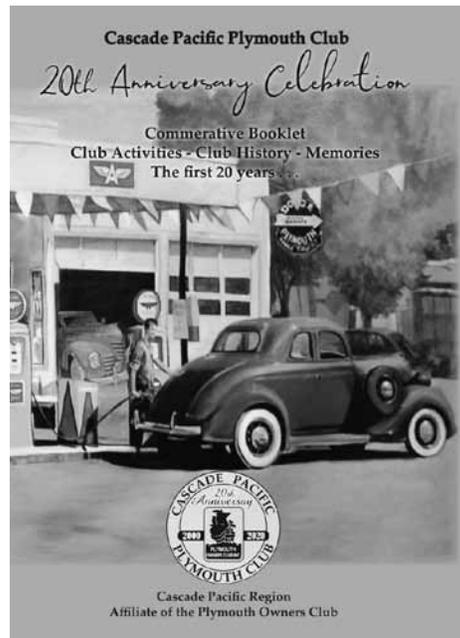

CRUISE-IN PLANNING

We can't plan ahead as far as June right now. There's certainly pent-up demand for outdoor car events, and we've got a bunch of experienced car-show planners on the committee, but we'll need to hear from the parks department about the availability of Clackamette Park.

Randy Ealy figures we can do a good job of the event if we can get started planning in March.

WHAT TO DO INSTEAD?

If we can't have a car show, we'll need to think about (1) other ways to raise funds, and (2) other ways for club members to enjoy their cars and our fellowship as COVID-era restrictions continue. Short local tours with socially-distanced picnics show promise, and the CPPC board is open to suggestions to make 2021 more fun than last year.

We still have some books from the first run of Mike Bade's 20 Anniversary History of Cascade Pacific Plymouth Club. To get yours, contact Pam Ealy or order and pay on the first page of CascadePacificPlymouth.org

CPPC dues for 2021 are payable in January

Dues for Cascade Pacific Plymouth Club are $25 for the calendar year.

We take checks, mailed to P.O. Box 2988, Clackamas, OR 97015.

Members may also pay dues through the club's website, using the PayPal buttons about halfway down the first page of CascadePacificPlymouth.org.

Prompt payment helps the board plan and budget if need be. Absent our other fundraisers due to COVID-19, member dues are the club's only income at present.

CPPC will be meeting virtually on January 26. Watch your email for updates!

Minutes of November's membership meeting

From minutes taken by Jim Wheat

Members of the Cascade Pacific Plymouth Club, Inc., met virtually via Zoom at 7:00 PM, November 24, 2020. The shut-down necessitated by the Coronavirus required meeting virtually.

Phil Lapin, President, presided. Phil welcomed 18 members to the meeting, Jim Wheat recorded the minutes. Minutes of the October meeting were approved as published in the newsletter. Mike Bade reported that the Club has Gained thirteen new families this year. Names of new members are included in the Newsletter.

Treasurer's report: Phil reported that despite the lack of any new income due to cancellation of all activities, CPPC's financial condition is adequate to get through the year. Expenses that will be hitting the budget include insurance for the trailer and rent for the clubhouse. The Board voted and approved a six month payment of rent in order to keep our meeting dates and the availability to use the clubhouse at a future date active.

Activities: Birthdays for December were announced, a complete list is in the December Newsletter.

The presentation for tonight's meeting was provided by Phil Lapin with two powerpoint presentations, the first one showing a series of beautiful Woodies from Chrysler, Oldsmobile, Buick and Ford. The craftsmanship on these cars is incredible. In Phil's second presentation he described how business is conducted in Japan and how important tradition is in conducting business.

Mike Bade and Phil Lapin gave special recognition to Board members and several of those in the General Membership that have been instrumental in providing leadership and assistance in keeping the Club during the Covid crisis.

The online ZOOM meetings have been going well despite occasional technical difficulties which are always overcome.

Mike Bade previewed the 20th anniversary booklet he has produced. A decision was made to print 50 booklets and ask for a donation of $15 to cover the cost of printing and mailing. An email blast will go out to all members with a sample of a few pages from the book. Mike has single handedly taken on this project and produced an excellent representation of the last twenty years of the Cascade Pacific Plymouth Club and remember this is our only fund raiser for the year. Thank you Mike for your dedication and expertise in producing such a complete history of our Club.

Robin Will was unable to attend tonight's meeting, but as a reminder, please keep contributing articles for the newsletter. We are interested in hearing stories and seeing photos of your cars or anything car related.

There is no news on next year's swap meet, the Expo Center is waiting until February to make a decision. Pam Ealy has our June Cruise-in in the Yellow Book, fingers crossed, it will happen and we will get at least 500 cars.

It looks like CPPC has taken over a large section of the last two issues of the POC Bulletin with pictures and stories about our Club. Thanks Mike and Robin for submitting the articles.

The Board will meet in January to discuss moving the meeting to evening hours in order to enable more members to hopefully participate. Next year we will need to fill two vacant positions on the Board, Vice President and Secretary. Contact any Board member for more information.

Mike Bade reported that he had success in selling the donated 1956 Plymouth. Mike and Randy will haul it to Wildcat Wrecking.

This is the last meeting of 2020 and again, thanks to all the members of the Cascade Pacific Plymouth Club for keeping things going despite all the obstacles we have encountered this year. Have a great Thanksgiving and wonderful Christmas, see you in January.

Meeting adjourned 8:30

The Steering Column, A Message from the President

Hello CPPC Members and Friends! I hope that this finds you in good health, and ready for a time of recovery, re-evaluations and opportunities. Please keep your guard up until this pandemic is stamped out – we have a ways to go yet. You might think of the virus like radiation – it can't be seen, but it will still injure or kill you without precautions taken. Thus the lead vest during medical X rays, and the techs standing far away! For the virus, masks and physical distance are the tools.

We will continue to hold monthly ZOOM membership meetings – which I encourage all of you to attend. Information and presentations abound in these meetings. It is the one time in the history of the club that EVERY member can visit – regardless of location. You can use a desktop computer, laptop, tablet or your smartphone – and I will be happy to get you up to speed on these. It is very easy to participate. You need not say a word, or even have your video output on if that is more comfortable!

As most of you should know by now, this is my last month as president of CPPC. I want to thank all of the many friends that I have met, both as president as well as in the technical calls from members. I can assure you that if you need help in any way, I will be available and “hanging around” as a generic $25 a year member!

Jim Wheat will be stepping up as president, while Mike Bade remains as board chair. I have known Jim since the time I started in the club, and he is a good guy with an excellent background. My only complaint with Jim is that he is constantly winning awards with his beautiful Dodge! He knows how to pick winners, and will do the same with his club leadership.

CPPC must have officers to function effectively, and the two board spots needing to be filled are for vice president and for secretary. Please consider helping out. The board is going to try out meeting in the EVENINGS for a few months, so everyone should be able to pitch in. These will be ZOOM meetings – no driving, no interference with your daytime!

Sincerely, Phil Lapin

Mid-Valley car clubs rally for veteran's 90th birthday parade

We've been seeing a lot of D.J. Freeman in the CPPC newsletter recently – he and his friends in Oregon's mid-valley car clubs have been finding ways to stay active while many of us remain housebound in the time of COVID.

D.J. lives in Philomath, Oregon – west of Corvallis, at the beginnings of the Coast Range, about 90 mles from our clubhouse in Clackamas.

The latest adventure involves some youngsters in Lebanon who decided to surprise their dad with a no-contact old-car parade on his 90th birthday, January 16th.

The birthday guy, Jack Davis, viewed through D.J. Freeman's windshield.

It doesn't look like a particularly nice day, but mid-valley car club members braved cold and COVID to help a 90-year-old veteran enjoy his birthday. His kids set up the car parade and alerted everybody in the mobile home court, and surprised their dad. That's D.J. Freeman's 1938 Plymouth business coupe in the background.

Gift to CPPC nets $450 at Wildcat Auto Wrecking

They're not making any more of them, which means this field-find still has some value to the old-car hobby. The car was donated as-is/where-is to CPPC by Ken Carsley in Newberg,, and Mike Bade and Randy Ealy got it onto the trailer and took it to WildcatAuto Wrecking.

OFF THE HOOK – Radiator Questions

By Phil Lapin

CPPC President & Tech Committee

There are very few “old school” radiator repair shops left for us vintage car owners. Thanks to a tip from our member Jerry Klinger, we DO have a shop in our area that has been working on radiators since 1946 – and is being run by a 3rd generation family member! Following up on this, I had a long phone talk with Rick Peabody, the owner of Wilson Radiator Service in Vancouver, Washington. He knows all there is to know about radiators and radiator shops that have been in the Portland Metro Area since the 1940s. I’ll come back to Rick and what his shop can do in a minute but first, here are some tips and information from him.

Plymouth cars used what are now old style “honeycomb” radiators. They were well built, but issues do come up. Can they be repaired – BUT each one must be looked at and judged on a case by case basis. The solid tops develop stress cracks – and the input and outlet fittings put pressure on some areas. Be optimistic though, because Wilson Radiator is capable of professional evaluations and repairs.

Keeping fresh antifreeze in the radiators is important in prolonging the radiator life. Sometimes, with leaks in the honeycomb, immersing the entire radiator for several days in water will heal the leak (really!). These radiator systems are non-pressurized, so always use a vented radiator cap – don’t trust the decision on this to a generic repair shop. If you need a new heater hose, one good trick is to bend a piece of wire to the precise contours of the existing hose, then look through hoses at your local auto store. Find one with the same contour – regardless of how long it is, and cut out the portion you need. You can also Google and download the “Gates Molded Hose Catalog” and search by hose diameter. Then order a couple that look about right through your auto parts store. That worked out well for me.

I asked about painting the radiators black – specifically if it helped to conduct heat. The answer – not really, and only the outside can be sprayed. Spraying does help with the cosmetics and keeping corrosion to a minimum.

There are lots of aluminum radiators for sale which will fit vintage Plymouths – both pre-made and custom fabricated. eBay is loaded with ads for these. Rick is very negative on these for one major reason: They are made out of very thin aluminum tubing. Installed in a vintage car, they often are not properly grounded, and they corrode out quite rapidly through electrolysis.

So, back to Wilson Radiator! Rick Peabody indicated that they do a lot of commercial and specialty radiator work, as well as more standard radiators. That includes scratch built radiators. Rick fabricated such a radiator which was for a 1917 Jenny airplane – which is the type shown in the picture. The entire prop shaft goes right through the radiator! In addition to radiators, Wilson Radiator can repair and rebuild heater cores. Rick has a very good website: www.wilsonradiator.com that has all the contact and location information and rest at ease about your radiator!

Dry-country wrecking yard has some Plymouths in inventory

By Mike Bade

I like to pride myself as a little bit of an Old Car Detective, now that I am retired and have a little more time to get out, usually with my camera.

Thus was the case on the way back from the Bonneville Salt Flats last month, as we drove from the South, through Central Oregon. Driving through town I saw a Bright Yellow mid forties street rod through the window of a business. An alarm went off in my head and I wondered if there were more cars in fields or where ever to be discovered.

I always have a few of my Photography Business Flyers with me, so I turned around and went into the business and talked to the owner, to satisfy my curiosity about any cool cars in the area.

After showing the guy one of my Photo Flyers and explaining, I was always looking for old cars and especially Plymouths. He told me there is an abandon wrecking yard not too far out of town. The owner had died and the son was in charge and he told me his name.

I quickly drove out to the wrecking yard. Approaching the property, there were many cars, mainly of the 50's vintage, in various stages of distress. I was lucky that the owner was there to talk to, I waved to him from his entrance gate and he motioned me on to the property.

After introductions and telling him my intentions, he was glad to show me what he had. There were a handful of Plymouths, a couple of Imperials, many Fords and Chevys, a few pickups, station wagons, etc. approx. 90ish vehicles.

The owners plan, is to sell them on ebay, which he has never done before. It may be next year before he get this done as he is going to photograph them one at a time.

Donna and I were in a hurry to get home, we had already been driving 10 hrs. and more hours ahead of us to get home. I snapped a dozen photos with my cell phone and we were off, with the plan to come back later to really photograph the cars.

Well a week later I came back with my camera. It took about 2 hrs to photograph the cars, best as I could on a 90 plus degree day. First the front, side and back; stomp the weeds to get a decent shot, then on to the next car. I was able to pretty much document all the cars.

Yes, there are some plymouths, one really caught my eye, a 1961 Fury, seemed pretty complete, through the weeds. See photo and a couple more photos of hood ornaments as example of others he has.

Editor's note: Since Mike paid his visit, the wrecking yard has opened for business. It's Ellis Auto Wrecking, and the proprietor is Tony Ellis. Phone 541-788-0984.

Email Mike for a link to a video collection of the wrecking yard pictures.

Valley residents know the value of cars from the high desert: they don't rust, they just get sort of sunburned. Mike and Donna Bade found this business in Burns, Oregon. Mike photographed (top to bottom) a 1951 Plymouth, a 1953 Plymouth, and a 1961 Plymouth, resting in the sun.

Bob Westphal reports: "Yvonne is doing well but has trouble walking and moves very slow because of a degenerative disc in her back causing pain in her legs. Her spirits are good most of the time. As for me, I'm doing quite well and feel better than I have in the past. I'm on mild meds to stop the cancer which has lowered my PSA to close to zero. The doctors feel that the meds will slow down the cancer so that I'll die from something else. So far, I haven't had any side effects. I'm crossing my fingers! I hope everyone is doing well."
